

The mission of the Brown County Native Woodlands Project (BCNWP) is to protect the forests of the Brown County Hills from the devastating effects of invasive plant species through education, training, and eradication of non-native invasive plants.

Unfortunately there's a growing threat to the enjoyment that our woodlands generate and to their economic benefits to Brown County. Non-native invasive plants impinge on our county from every direction and unless we act immediately, there will be neither sufficient funds nor manpower to reverse the devastation. To launch our efforts, the committee chose to target Asian bush honeysuckles, autumn olive, tree of heaven and Japanese knotweed, four non-native invasive plants that are the most amenable to control.

We need your help! Please attend a Volunteer Organizational Meeting to learn how you can join the effort to control invasive plants in Brown County.
